UNITED FOUNDRIES, INC., ET AL.
Defendant/Plaintiff/Appellee

CASE NO. 2009CA0019

-vs-

GULF UNDERWRITERS
INSURANCE COMPANY
Defendant/Appellant

This matter came on for consideration upon a motion to certify conflict filed by Appellee United Doundries, Inc.

The Ohio Supreme Court set forth the requirements necessary to properly certify a conflict in Whitelock v. Gilbane Building Company 1993-Ohio-223, 66 Ohio St.3d 594.

The Court held:

"Accordingly, we respectfully urge our sisters and brothers in the courts of appeals to certify to us for final determination only those cases where there is a true and actual conflict on a rule of law. In so urging, we hold that (1) pursuant to Section 3(B)(4), Article IV of the Ohio Constitution and S.Ct.Prac:R. III, there must be an actual conflict between appellate judicial districts on a rule of law before certification of a case to the Supreme Court for review and final determination is proper; and (2) when certifying a case as in conflict with the judgment of another court of appeals, either the journal entry or opinion of the court of appeals so certifying must clearly set forth the rule of law upon which the alleged conflict exists.”

Appellee United maintains this Court’s May 3, 2010 Opinion and Judgment Entry is in conflict with the decision of the Third District Court of Appeals in Cooper Tire and Rubber Company v. Travelers Casualty and Surety Company No. 5-06-40, 2007 Ohio 1905.

Upon review, this Court finds a true and actual conflict does exist, and hereby certifies the same to Supreme Court for review and a final determination as to the following:

Whether an exclusion in a commercial general liability insurance policy and/or stop gap endorsement form, stating the insurance does not apply to “bodily injury intentionally caused or aggravated by you, or bodily injury resulting from an act which is determined to have been committed by you with the belief that an injury is substantially certain to occur” requires a final determination made by either a judge or a jury before the defense of a claim for a substantial certainty employer intentional tort can be denied.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Hoffman, P.J.

{¶1} Appellant Gulf Underwriter's Insurance Company appeals the July 6, 2009 Judgment Entry of the Stark County Court of Common Pleas, denying its motion for summary judgment and granting Appellee United Foundries, Inc.'s motion for summary judgment on the issue of duty to defend.

STATEMENT OF THE FACTS AND THE CASE

{¶2} On or about June 6, 2003, David Ward, an employee of United Foundries, Inc. ("United") suffered a workplace injury.

{¶3} On June 7, 2004, Ward filed an intentional tort suit against United alleging he was injured by a melting furnace that was a dangerous condition, and that United had actual knowledge of that dangerous condition. According to Ward, United also subjected him to this dangerous condition "despite knowledge that he and others similarly situated were substantially certain to be injured in the process of performing his job duties." In summarizing this claim for relief, Ward alleged he was injured "as a direct and proximate result of the intentional and wrongful misconduct" of United. Ward also sought punitive damages. Specifically, Ward alleged the conduct by United was "willful, wanton, intentional and/or with actual malice and the Plaintiff is entitled to punitive damages." The complaint also contained a derivative claim by Mary Ward, who alleged she "has suffered the loss of the care, companionship, consortium, services and society of her husband."

{¶4} At the time of this occurrence, Gulf Underwriters Insurance Company ("Gulf") insured United under a policy that was effective from July 1, 2002, to July 1,

2003. Commercial general liability coverage was included in the Gulf Policy. In pertinent part, the "Commercial General Liability Coverage Part" states as follows:

{¶15} "Various provisions in this policy restrict coverage. Read the entire policy carefully to determine rights, duties and what is and is not covered.

{¶16} "SECTION I – COVERAGES

{¶17} "COVERAGE A BODILY INJURY AND PROPERTY DAMAGE.

LIABILITY

{¶18} "1. Insuring Agreement

{¶19} "a. We will pay those sums that the insured becomes legally obligated to pay as damages because of 'bodily injury' or 'property damage' to which this insurance applies. We will have the right and duty to defend the insured against any "suit" seeking those damages. However, we will have no duty to defend the insured against any 'suit' seeking damages for 'bodily injury' or 'property damage' to which this insurance does not apply.

{¶110} "No other obligation or liability to pay sums or perform acts or services is covered.

{¶111} "b. This insurance applies to 'bodily injury' and 'property damage' only if:

{¶112} "(1) The 'bodily injury' or 'property damage' is caused by an 'occurrence' that takes place in the "coverage territory"; and {¶113} "(2) The 'bodily injury' or 'property damage' occurs during the policy period.

{¶14} "c. Damages because of 'bodily injury' include damages claimed by any person or organization for care, loss of services or death resulting at any time from the 'bodily injury.'

{¶15} "2. Exclusions

{¶16} "This insurance does not apply to:

{¶17} "a. Expected or Intended Injury

{¶18} " 'Bodily injury' or 'property damage' expected or intended from the standpoint of the insured . . .

{¶19} " * * *

{¶20} "e. Employer's Liability

{¶21} " 'Bodily injury' to:

{¶22} "An 'employee' of the insured arising out of and in the course of:

{¶23} "(a) Employment by the insured; or

{¶24} "(b) Performing duties related to the conduct of the insured's insurers; or {¶25} "(2) The spouse, child, parent, brother, or sister of that "employee" as a consequence of Paragraph (1) above.

{¶26} "This exclusion applies:

{¶27} "(1) Whether the insured may be liable as an employer or in any other capacity¹; and

{¶28} "(2) To any obligation to share damages with or repay someone else who must pay damages because of injury.²

¹ This provision is referred to as a "dual capacity" exclusion within the insurance industry.

{¶29} ***

{¶30} " SECTION V – DEFINITIONS

{¶31} "3. 'Bodily injury' means bodily injury, sickness or disease sustained by a person, including death resulting from any of these at any time.

{¶32} ***

{¶33} "13. 'Occurrence' means an accident, including continuous or repeated exposure to substantially the same general harmful conditions."

{¶34} United also purchased employers liability coverage from Gulf via an Employers Liability Stop Gap Endorsement, which states, in pertinent part:

{¶35} "EMPLOYER'S LIABILITY COVERAGE

{¶36} "THIS ENDORSEMENT CHANGES THE POLICY. PLEASE READ IT CAREFULLY.

{¶37} "This endorsement modifies insurance provided under the following:

{¶38} "COMMERCIAL GENERAL LIABILITY COVERAGE PART

{¶39} "A. SCHEDULE

{¶40} "1. Designated State(s): OHIO

{¶41} ***

{¶42} "B. PROVISIONS

{¶43} "The following provisions apply to SECTION I - COVERAGE A. - with respect to 'bodily injury' included within the 'employer's liability hazard.'

{¶44} "1. The exclusions in paragraph 2 of SECTION I - COVERAGE A. - are replaced by the following:

² This provision is referred to as a "third party over-suit" exclusion within the insurance industry.

{¶45} "This insurance does not apply to:

{¶46} " * * *

{¶47} "e. 'Bodily injury' intentionally caused or aggravated by you, or 'bodily injury' resulting from an act which is determined to have been committed by you with the belief:

that an injury is substantially certain to occur;

{¶48} " * * *

{¶49} "3. The following additional definition applies:

{¶50} " 'Employer's liability hazard' includes:

{¶51} "a. 'Bodily injury' sustained by one of your employees if such "bodily injury" arises out of and in the course of such employee's employment by you which is necessary or incidental to your work in a state designated in the Schedule on endorsement CG T3 13 10 89; and {¶52} "b. Consequential 'bodily injury' to a spouse, child, parent, brother or sister of the injured employee provided that such 'bodily injury' is the direct consequence of 'bodily injury' included within a. above.

{¶53} " 'Bodily injury' under a. and b. above is included whether or not:

{¶54} "i. The insured may be liable as an employer or in any other capacity; and

{¶55} "ii. It involves an obligation to share damages with or repay someone else who must pay damages because of the injury."

{¶56} The Gulf Policy was also endorsed with a Punitive Damages Exclusion, which provides:

{¶157} "In consideration of the premium charged, and notwithstanding anything contained in this policy to the contrary, it is agreed that this policy does not apply to liability for punitive or exemplary damages, in whatever form assessed."

{¶158} On or about June 11, 2004, United forwarded a copy of the 2004 complaint filed by the Wards to Gulf. Gulf responded on June 25, 2004, and denied defense and indemnity coverage.

{¶159} The Wards' complaint was dismissed without prejudice on or about February 27, 2006, but was re-filed on April 24, 2006. The new complaint was identical to the previous complaint. Consequently, Gulf maintained its denial of defense and indemnity coverage.

{¶160} On or about June 1, 2007, United filed the instant lawsuit against Appellant Gulf, seeking a declaration Gulf was obligated to provide a defense and indemnity coverage.

{¶161} On November 26, 2007, the trial court consolidated the defense/coverage declaration action with the underlying intentional tort complaint for pretrial discovery. Subsequently the trial court issued an order on June 24, 2008, instructing the parties to file dispositive motions solely on the issue of whether Gulf had a duty to defend United.

{¶162} On July 3, 2008, United filed a motion for summary judgment alleging a duty to defend existed under the Employers Stop Gap Endorsement.

{¶163} On July 17, 2008, Gulf filed a cross-motion for summary judgment alleging there was no possibility of coverage and thus it had no duty to defend.

{¶64} On or about January 5, 2009, the trial court issued an order finding there were no genuine issues of material fact on the duty to defend, and granted summary judgment for United.

{¶65} It is from this decision Gulf now appeals, assigning the following errors for review.

ASSIGNMENTS OF ERROR

{¶66} "I. THE TRIAL COURT ERRED IN DENYING SUMMARY JUDGMENT FOR APPELLANT GULF ON THE DUTY TO DEFEND WHEN THE UNDISPUTED EVIDENCE ESTABLISHED NO POSSIBILITY OF COVERAGE.

{¶67} "II. THE TRIAL COURT ERRED IN GRANTING SUMMARY JUDGMENT FOR APPELLEE UNITED ON THE DUTY TO DEFEND WHEN IT CONCLUDED THAT THE EMPLOYERS LIABILITY STOP GAP ENDORSEMENT WAS ILLUSORY."

I., II.

{¶68} We shall address Gulf's assignments of error together as they are interrelated.

{¶69} Summary judgment proceedings present the appellate court with the unique opportunity of reviewing the evidence in the same manner as the trial court. Smiddy v. The Wedding Party, Inc. (1987), 30 Ohio St.3d 35, 36. Civ.R. 56(C) provides, in pertinent part:

{¶70} "Summary judgment shall be rendered forthwith if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, written admissions, affidavits, transcripts of evidence in the pending case, and written stipulations of fact, if any, timely filed in the action, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. * * * A summary judgment shall not be rendered unless it appears from such evidence or stipulation and only therefrom, that reasonable minds can come to but one conclusion and that conclusion is adverse to the party against whom the motion for summary judgment is made, such party being entitled to have the evidence or stipulation construed most strongly in his favor."

{¶71} Pursuant to the above rule, a trial court may not enter a summary judgment if it appears a material fact is genuinely disputed. The party moving for summary judgment bears the initial burden of informing the trial court of the basis for its motion and identifying those portions of the record that demonstrate the absence of a genuine issue of material fact. The moving party may not make a conclusory assertion that the non-moving party has no evidence to prove its case. The moving party must specifically point to some evidence which demonstrates the non-moving party cannot support its claim. If the moving party satisfies this requirement, the burden shifts to the non-moving party to set forth specific facts demonstrating there is a genuine issue of material fact for trial. Vahila v. Hall, 77 Ohio St.3d 421, 429, 1997-Ohio-259, citing Dresher v. Burt, 75 Ohio St.3d 280, 1996-Ohio-107.

{¶72} It is based upon this standard that we review Gulf's assignments of error.

{¶73} As set forth above, the underlying complaint filed by the Wards against United alleges David Ward was injured as a result of a dangerous condition of which United had knowledge, and United subjected him to this dangerous condition despite knowledge it was substantially certain he would be injured in the process of performing his job duties.

{¶74} United filed the within action to determine whether Gulf owed a duty to defend, indemnify, or otherwise provide coverage to United for any and all allegations stemming from the underlying intentional tort lawsuit. Gulf maintains it had no duty to defend in this matter and the stop-gap coverage provided to United was not illusory.

{¶75} When a complaint alleges a claim that could potentially be covered by an insurance policy, the duty to defend arises. Cincinnati Ins. Co. v. CPS Holdings, Inc. (2007), 115 Ohio St.3d 306, 875 N.E.2d 31. "[When] the complaint brings the action within the coverage of the policy, the insurer is required to make the defense, regardless of the ultimate outcome of the action or its liability to the insured." Id. Even when the action is not clearly within the policy coverage, but the allegations could arguably or potentially state a claim within the policy coverage, the insurer still has a responsibility to defend the entire action. Sanderson v. Ohio Edison Co. (1994), 69 Ohio St.3d 582, 586, 635 N.E.2d 19; Willoughby Hills v. Cincinnati Ins. Co. (1984), 9 Ohio St.3d 177, 459 N.E.2d 555.

{¶76} However, an insured is not obligated to defend a claim "clearly and indisputably outside the contracted policy coverage." Cincinnati Ins. Co. v. CPS Holdings, Inc., supra. "Only if there is no possibility of coverage under the policy based on the allegations in the complaint will the insurer not have a duty to defend the action." Erie Ins. Exch. v. Colony Dev. Corp. (1999), 136 Ohio App.3d 406, 413, 736 N.E.2d 941.

{¶77} An insurer's duty to defend is broader than the duty to indemnify. Ohio Govt. Risk Mgt. Plan v. Harrison, 115 Ohio St.3d 241, 874 N.E.2d 1155, 2007-Ohio-4948, ¶ 19. The duty of the insurance company to defend is separate from the duty of the insurance company to indemnify. Willoughby Hills, supra. Once a duty to defend is recognized, "speculation about the insurer's ultimate obligation to indemnify is premature until facts excluding coverage are revealed during the defense of the litigation and the insurer timely reserves its rights to deny coverage." Erie Ins. Exch. Supra at 413.

{¶178} In its motion for summary judgment, United maintains, "[i]n obtaining the Gulf policy, it was United Foundries' express intent to procure insurance which would provide a defense and indemnity for claims of substantial certainty employer intentional torts." (United's Motion for Summary Judgment, Affidavit of Ronald Martin). United further stated it believed the $5,000 premium it paid for "Stop-Gap" coverage provided defense and indemnity coverage for substantial certainty employer intentional torts. Id.

{¶179} Gulf argues the language in the "Stop Gap" endorsement excludes substantial certainty employer intentional torts which "have been determined to have been committed by [United]".

{¶180} United argues such coverage was the sole purpose of purchasing the endorsement and, without such coverage, the endorsement is useless. Without it, United asserts it paid a significant premium for nothing.

{¶181} Gulf maintains while the Stop Gap endorsement does not provide coverage for substantial certainty intentional torts, it is not illusory because it does provide coverage for dual capacity suits, third party over-suits, consequential bodily injury and unknown employer liability hazards. We agree.

{¶182} Because the claim as alleged in the Wards' complaint would not bring the action within the coverage of the policy, we find Gulf is not required to defend nor indemnify United under the terms of the policy. The complaint clearly alleges an intentional tort claim against the employer. Such claim is clearly excluded from coverage under the Commercial General Liability Policy as modified by the Employers Liability Stop Gap Endorsement to exclude coverage for: "'Bodily injury' intentionally caused or aggravated by you, or 'bodily injury' resulting from an act which is determined to have been committed by you with the belief that an injury is substantially certain to occur." If a contract's terms are clear and unambiguous, no issue of fact remains and the contract must be interpreted as a matter of law. Inland Refuse Transfer Co. v. Browning Ferris Indus. of Ohio, Inc. (1984), 15 Ohio St.3d, 321, 322. Because we find the exclusion is unambiguous, United's purpose or understanding it was acquiring coverage for such a claim under the Stop Gap Endorsement is irrelevant.³

{¶83} United argues because the plaintiff-employee's claim has yet to be "determined to have been committed," it is entitled to a defense even if coverage is later determined to be unavailable. We find this argument unpersuasive. If the allegations in Wards' complaint are ultimately determined to be true, coverage is specifically excluded. Applying the "scope of the allegations" test, we find the claim stated in the complaint is neither potentially nor arguably covered under the terms of the policy. As such, we conclude Gulf has no duty to defend nor indemnify.

{¶84} In his dissent, Judge Wise finds coverage exists based upon the definition of "employer's liability hazard." Judge Wise interprets such definitional language as providing coverage to employees for injuries arising out of their employment not otherwise covered by workers' compensation.⁴ Thus, he concludes the only thing the Stop Gap Endorsement could provide coverage for is substantial-certainty intentional torts.⁵ As such, Judge Wise, as did the trial court, concludes the Stop Gap Endorsement is illusory. We respectfully disagree.

³ The insured's purpose and understanding may well be relevant in a claim by the insured against the issuing insurance agent/agency.

{¶85} Gulf asserts the Stop-Gap endorsement provides additional coverage for "dual capacity torts" and "third party over-suits" which are specifically excluded under the General Commercial Liability Policy. While acknowledging Gulf's assertion, United replies, because its only intended purpose for purchasing the Stop-Gap Endorsement was to cover substantial certainty employer intentional torts, the endorsement is illusory.⁶ While United's "understanding"⁷ was the endorsement would provide defense and indemnity coverage for substantial certainty employer intentional torts, such understanding goes to the extent of the additional coverage purchased rather than whether additional coverage exists. Although the expanded coverage is not necessarily what United thought it would be, we do not find it to be illusory.

{¶86} Gulf's two assignments of error are sustained.

⁴ As noted by Judge Wise, employee claims against an employer for negligence are barred under Ohio's Workers' Compensation Laws.

Wise, J., dissenting

{¶88} I respectfully dissent from the majority opinion.

{¶89} In the instant case, Appellee argues that coverage for substantial certainty intentional torts was the sole purpose of purchasing the endorsement and that without such coverage, the endorsement is useless and further, that it paid a significant premium for nothing.

{¶90} Appellant Gulf argues that while the Stop Gap endorsement does not provide coverage for substantial certainty intentional torts, it is not illusory because it does provide coverage for dual capacity suits, third party over-suits, consequential bodily injury and unknown employer liability hazards.

{¶91} Pursuant to the Employer's Liability Coverage/Stop-Gap endorsement, such coverage included:

{¶92} "Bodily injury" sustained by one of your employees if such "bodily injury" arises out of and in the course of such employee's employment by you which is necessary or incidental to your work in a state designated in the Schedule on endorsement CG T3 13 10 89; and

{¶93} "b. ***

{¶94} This writer reads this to mean that this endorsement provided coverage for injuries to employees of Appellee United Foundries arising out of their employment with Appellee that is not covered by the workers' compensation system. In Ohio, the only injuries that would not be covered by workers' compensation are intentional torts and, as the only type of intentional tort that one can insure against without violating Ohio public policy is substantial-certainty intentional torts, the only thing the stop-gap endorsement could provide coverage for is substantial-certainty intentional torts.

{¶195} While Appellant Gulf argues that other claims such as "dual capacity torts" and "third party over-suits" would be covered under this Endorsement, this writer's understanding of "dual capacity torts" and "third party over-suits" is such that a foundry would have no use for this type of coverage as it does not produce an end product which would subject it to liability for those types of claims.

{¶196} Based on the language as contained in the endorsement, I would find that to give effect to the exclusion would render its policy illusory.

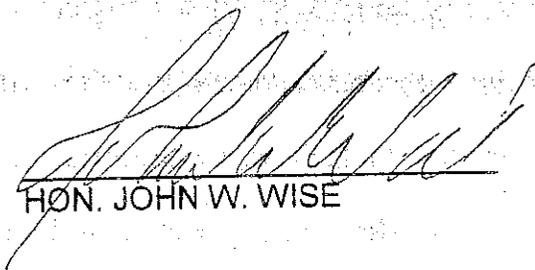

{¶197} When interpreting an insurance contract, the main goal of the court is to achieve a "reasonable construction [of the contract] in conformity with the intention of the parties as gathered from the ordinary and commonly understood meaning of the language employed." King v. Nationwide Ins. Co. (1988), 35 Ohio St.3d 208, 211, 519 N.E.2d 1380, quoting Dealers Dairy Products Co. v. Royal Ins. Co. (1960), 170 Ohio St. 336, 164 N.E.2d 745. If a contract's terms are clear and unambiguous, no issue of fact remains and the contract must be interpreted as a matter of law. Inland Refuse Transfer Co. v. Browning-Ferris Industries of Ohio, Inc. (1984), 15 Ohio St.3d 321, 322, 474 N.E.2d 271. However, when an ambiguity exists, the contract's ambiguous terms must be strictly construed against the insurer and liberally in favor of the policyholder. King, supra, 35 Ohio St.3d at 211, 519 N.E.2d 1380.

{¶198} When "construing an agreement, the court should prefer a meaning which gives it vitality rather than a meaning which renders its performance illegal or impossible." Kebe v. Nutro Machinery Corp. (1985), 30 Ohio App.3d 175, 30 OBR 316, 507 N.E.2d 369. Generally, "courts disfavor contract interpretations which render contracts illusory or unenforceable." Harasyn v. Normandy Metals, Inc. (July 28, 1988), Cuyahoga App. No. 53212, 1988 WL 86966, quoting *Liqui*Lawn Corp. v. The Andersons* (Apr. 10, 1986), Cuyahoga App. No. 50240, 1986 WL 4394.

{¶99} I am not inclined to give the insurance policy a reading that would render it useless. Appellee paid a significant premium for this policy, and we fail to see what it paid for if it was not coverage for substantial-certainty intentional torts.

{¶100} Accordingly, I would find the trial court did not err in finding there is no genuine issue of material fact, and Appellee United Foundries was entitled to judgment as a matter of law.

*1 {¶ 1} Plaintiff-appellant Cooper Tire & Rubber Company ("Cooper") brings this appeal from the judgment of the Court of Common Pleas of Hancock County granting summary judgment to defendant-appellee Travelers Casualty and Surety Company ("Travelers").

{¶ 2} On February 24, 1993, Kim Caudill ("Caudill"), a Cooper employee was injured while working at Cooper's plant in Findlay, Ohio. Caudill filed a suit for bodily injury resulting from the accident on February 28, 1995. The complaint alleged that Cooper failed to provide a safe place of employment and required Caudill to work in a location with hazards which were substantially certain to cause serious physical harm. The complaint was promptly passed on to Travelers, the insurance company for Cooper at the time of the accident. On June 20, 1995, Travelers agreed to pay defense costs under a reservation of rights. A few months later, Travelers determined that it was not under any obligation to defend the suit and denied coverage. Cooper then filed suit against Travelers on December 7, 1998, requesting damages for breach of contract and requesting declaratory relief. Travelers moved for summary judgment on March 5, 1999. In June of 1999, Cooper settled the suit with Caudill. Cooper then filed its own motion for summary judgment on July 27, 1999. Cooper on December 3, 1999, moved the court for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim for bad faith.

 This motion was never resolved and is presumed denied. Georgoff v. O'Brien (1995), 105 Ohio App.3d 373, 663 N.E.2d 1348. On July 26, 2006, the trial court granted Travelers motion for summary judgment and denied Cooper's motion for summary judgment. Cooper now appeals from this judgment and raises the following assignments of error.

The trial court reversibly erred in holding in its July 26, 2006, Judgment Entry that Exclusion 5 precluded coverage for the Caudill lawsuit even where there was no determination by a court or jury that Cooper committed the alleged act with the belief that injury was substantially certain to occur.

The trial court reversibly erred in failing to find that Travelers is obligated to pay the full amount of the settlement of the Caudill lawsuit.

{¶ 3} The first assignment of error claims that the trial court erred in granting summary judgment to Travelers. When reviewing a motion for summary judgment, courts must proceed cautiously and award summary judgment only when appropriate. Franks v. The Lima News (1996), 109 Ohio App.3d 408, 672 N.E.2d 245. " Civ.R. 56(C) provides that before summary judgment may be granted, it must be determined that (1) no genuine issues as to any material fact remains to be litigated; (2) the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law; and (3) it appears from the evidence that reasonable minds can come to but one conclusion, and viewing the evidence most strongly in favor of the nonmoving party, that conclusion is adverse to the nonmoving party." State ex rel. Howard v. Ferreri (1994), 70 Ohio St.3d 587, 589, 639 N.E.2d 1189. When reviewing the judgment of the trial court, an appellate court reviews the case de novo. Franks, supra.

*2 {¶ 4} Here, Travelers provided Cooper with a Workers Compensation and Employers Liability Policy that was in effect from April 1, 1992, until April 1, 1993. This policy states in pertinent part as follows.

This employers liability insurance applies to bodily injury by accident or bodily injury by disease. Bodily injury includes resulting death.

1. The bodily injury must arise out of and in the course of the injured employee's employment by you.
2. The employment must be necessary or incidental to your work in a state or territory listed in item 3.A. of the Information Page.
3. Bodily injury by accident must occur during the policy period.

* * *

We will pay all sums you legally must pay as damages because of bodily injury to your employees, provided the bodily injury is covered by this Employers Liability insurance.

* * *

This insurance does not cover

bodily injury intentionally caused or aggravated by you, or bodily injury resulting from an act which is determined to have been committed by you with the belief that an injury is substantially certain to occur. (emphasis added).

* * *

We have the right and duty to defend, at our expense, any claim, proceeding or suit against you for damages payable by this insurance. We have the right to investigate and settle these claims, proceedings and suits.

We have no duty to defend a claim, proceeding or suit that is not covered by this insurance. We have no duty to defend or continue defending after we have paid our applicable limit of liability under this insurance.

Policy, 2-3, and Ohio Coverage Endorsement. This court notes that there is no dispute that the premiums were paid or that Cooper did not comply with its notification duties. The sole dispute before this court is whether the policy requires Travelers to defend and /or indemnify Cooper in the suit.

{¶ 5} When the complaint brings the action within the coverage of the policy, the insurer is required to provide a defense, regardless of the ultimate outcome of the action or its liability to the insured. Cincinnati Ins. Co. v. Anders, 99 Ohio St.3d 156, 2003-Ohio-3048, 789 N.E.2d 1094 (citing Motorists Mut. Ins. Co. v. Trainor (1973), 33 Ohio St.2d 41, 294 N.E.2d 874). "Where the allegations state a claim that falls either potentially or arguably within the liability insurance coverage, the insurer must defend the insured in the action." Id. at ¶ 18. However, "where the conduct which prompted the underlying * * * suit is so indisputably outside coverage, we discern no basis for requiring the insurance company to defend or indemnify its insured simply because the underlying complaint alleges conduct within coverage.” Id. at ¶ 21 (citing Preferred Risk Ins. Co. v. Gill (1987), 30 Ohio St.3d 108, 407 N.E.2d 1118). Unless the claims alleged in the complaint are indisputably outside of coverage, the Plan would have a duty to defend, regardless of whether it must indemnify the insured. The Ohio Government Risk Management Plan v. Harrison, et al., 161 Ohio App.3d 726, 2005-Ohio-3235, ¶ 5, 831 N.E.2d 1079. “The duty to defend an action is not determined by the action’s ultimate outcome or the insurer’s ultimate liability.” City of Sharonville v. Am. Emps. Ins. Co., 109 Ohio St.3d 186, 2006-Ohio-2180, ¶ 13, 846 N.E.2d 833.

*3 {¶ 6} In this case, the policy specifically excludes liability for bodily injury from an act “determined to have been committed by [the insured] with the belief that an injury is substantially certain to occur.” Because this type of coverage, is denied, the policy also provides for an exclusion of the duty to defend on this type of claim. However, the question is whether the act, or failure to act as is claimed in this case, has been “determined” to be committed by Cooper with the belief that harm was substantially certain to occur. The policy does not specify how this is to be determined or by whom.

{¶ 7} “[A]n ambiguity in an insurance contract is ordinarily interpreted against the insurer and in favor of the insured.” Westfield Ins. Co. v. Galatis, 100 Ohio St.3d 216, 2003-Ohio-5849, ¶ 13, 797 N.E.2d 1256. “Words and phrases used in an insurance policy must be given their natural and commonly accepted meaning.” U.S. Fidelity and Guar. Co. v. Lightning Rod Mut. Ins. Co. (1997), 80 Ohio St.3d 584, 585, 687 N.E.2d 717. “An exclusion in an insurance policy will be interpreted as applying only to that which is clearly intended to be excluded.” City of Sharonville, supra at ¶ 6. The exclusion must be clear and exact in its language to be given effect. U.S. Fidelity, supra at 586.

{¶ 8} Here, Travelers claims that the clear intent of the exclusion was to bar all coverage and defense for all employer intentional torts. Cooper responds by claiming that since the exclusion contains the term “determined,” the exclusion is not clear. “Determined” is defined as “decided or resolved.” The American Heritage Dictionary (2d Ed.1985), 388. Cooper claims that this means that a finder of fact must decide whether the exclusion applies. A review of the policy does not indicate that this argument is unreasonable. The clear language of the exclusion requires that a determination must be made prior to the exclusion being enforceable. The only context in the law for the language “determined to have been committed by you with the belief that an injury is substantially certain to occur” is found in the three part test for proving intent during a trial stated by the Ohio Supreme Court in Fyffe v. Jenos, Inc. (1991), 59 Ohio St.3d 115, 570 N.E.2d 1108. By using the words of Fyffe, the plain meaning of the policy language implicates a determination made by either a judge or jury. In addition, the question is raised whether the determination can be made prior to the duty to defend being raised. Since no judicial determination can be made prior to the conclusion of the case, Travelers may still have a duty to defend without the subsequent liability.^{FN1}

FN1. Whether Travelers would be entitled to recover the cost of the defense is not an issue before this court at this time.

{¶ 9} When reviewing a motion for summary judgment, the court must make every reasonable inference in favor of the nonmoving party, which in this case is Cooper. Since Cooper’s interpretation of the language is not unreasonable, the trial court erred in granting summary judgment as a genuine issue of material fact exists as to the interpretation of the terms of the policy. The first assignment of error is sustained.

*4 {¶ 10} Next, Cooper claims that the trial court erred in denying it summary judgment on the claim that Travelers should be required to pay the full settlement of the Caudill lawsuit. As discussed above, the plain language of the statute is ambiguous about when the exclusion actually applies. “If the language of the insurance policy is doubtful, uncertain,

Not Reported in N.E.2d, 2007 WL 1175183 (Ohio App. 3 Dist.), 2007 -Ohio- 1905
(Cite as: 2007 WL 1175183 (Ohio App. 3 Dist.))

or ambiguous, the language will be construed strictly against the insurer and liberally in favor of the insured." Progressive Ins. Co. v. Heritage Ins. Co. (1996), 113 Ohio App.3d 781, 682 N.E.2d 33.

The promises to defend and indemnify impose separate duties, triggered by different events. The duty to indemnify is triggered by the insured's actual legal liability. The duty to defend is a prior duty that's triggered by the insured's demand that the insurer provide a defense to a claim of alleged liability.

Gideone Mut. Ins. Co. v. Reno, 2nd Dist. No. 01-CA-68, 2002-Ohio-2057 at ¶ 17.

{¶ 11} The exclusion in dispute in this case states that there will be no coverage for "bodily injury resulting from an act which is determined to have been committed by you with the belief that an injury is substantially certain to occur." Policy, Ohio Coverage Endorsement. Here, there has been no determination that injury resulted from an act of Cooper committed with the belief that an injury was substantially certain to occur. This court notes that the mere allegation claimed in a complaint is not a determination. Travelers chose the language of its exclusion and possessed the ability to define all the terms included within the policy. While Travelers does not have a duty to indemnify Cooper for damages resulting from a determination per the plain language of the policy, no such determination has been made in this case as the matter was settled prior to a determination. "Unless it is clear and unequivocal that the insurer has no duty of coverage, coverage must be provided." Gideone, supra at ¶ 18. Since the exclusion does not clearly deny coverage in this case, coverage must be provided. The second assignment of error is sustained.

{¶ 12} The judgment of the Court of Common Pleas of Hancock County is reversed and remanded for further proceedings.
