MOTION

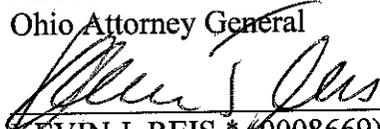

Time is of the essence here. Because of the unusual posture of the case, by separate motion all parties have jointly moved to realign the parties to more accurately reflect their respective positions on the merits of the question accepted by the Court for review.

However, because the record of the case has already been filed, the deadline for the first brief is already in effect. In essence, the clock is ticking.

Therefore, it is imperative that the parties know the sequence of briefing, so that the appropriate party may prepare and file the first brief timely. The parties jointly move that the Court resolve the motion to realign the parties immediately.

Respectfully submitted,

MICHAEL DEWINE
Ohio Attorney General
